This study sought to understand the implementation of RA 6713 otherwise known as the “Code of Conduct and Ethical Standards for Public Officials and Employees.” The researchers employed a descriptive research design and a non-probability sampling technique. A survey questionnaire was utilized to collect the required data, and descriptive statistical tools were used for the interpretation and analysis. The study was participated by eighty (80) employees from the City Government of Marawi. The study found that the respondents were somewhat aware of the law, as such the law is intermittently implemented and in certain occasion has effects. Various encountered constrains were found. Hence, the respondents acknowledged that there are prospective remedies to address those constraints.
